Visionstream announces multiple recent contract wins worth over $250M

Leighton Contractors, through its wholly owned subsidiary Visionstream Australia Pty Limited, today announced total work won since July 2011 of $250 million.

Key contracts won include:

- the design and build of the transit network for NBNCo worth over $19 million, announced in December 2011;
- the renewal of the Emergency Alerting System for the Emergency Services Telecommunications Authority (ESTA) worth $70 million, announced in September 2011 and;
- other contract wins with leading resources companies, major telecommunications businesses and a contract to design, construct and install fixed wireless telecommunications infrastructure as part of the NBN roll out.

Peter McGrath, Managing Director, Visionstream and Executive General Manager, Leighton Telecommunications said “Our track record and expertise in managing national complex projects provides a strong foundation to develop a robust approach to these exciting projects that will deliver improved telecommunication services to Australia.”

“Visionstream is a leading provider of design, construction and operation of carrier grade, mission critical communications assets, including bespoke communication solutions to industries such as resources, health and transport, and we are very pleased to be an important part of these significant projects.”
